ATTENTION

A meeting of the Democrats and anti-Know- servitude—so deeply loving and devoted to the gates to attend the State convention, to be held in with great propriety and correctness. Frankfort on the 8th of January, 1856.

Some years ago Wisconsin, in the exercise of a morbid phllanthropy, abolished the punishment of death for murder. Since that event several atrocious murders have been committed in the State; and Judge Lynch has superintended one or two executions. The late horrible murder of Mr. Adams, a banker, has stirred up an opposition to the law as it now stands. Public opinion demands its repeal, and the restoration of the penalty of death for homicide with malice afore-

There is a school of philosophers that admit but two objects in logal punishment:

1. To reform the criminal.

Il. To deter others from crime. Capital punishment, of course, does not reform its victim, and cannot be justified on that ground. It would seem that it ought to deter others from crime, but experience furnishes some reason to question it, and it is contended that a greater certainty of a milder punishment would have more

But the truth is, the object of punishment is not to reform the criminal, nor yet to deter others from crime. Neither of these objects would justify it. The moral sense of mankind, that the murderer deserves to die, is the basis of capital punishment. It is the ill deserts appreciated by the moral sense that is the ground, in fact, of all panishments from the hands of civil society.

The simple truth is, the criminal deserver punishment in proportion to the turpitude of his crime. Such is the sentiment of all men. The Johnson and Lorimer in their parts. And here that inflicts the punishment is but a transscript of the law of nature. Milder punishments demning, utterly and entirely, the person who seare inflicted for less offences; not to reform the lected "Oliver Twist" for performance. It is a culprit, nor to deter others from crime. It is true play we had never seen, and we staid to witness that reformation sometimes follows punishment, the whole of it, in hope we might find one redeemand men are deterred from crime by it, but these ing trait in it. But no-it is an infamous attempt are consequences that flow from righteous acts of on the morals of the young ; it is a school for theft, punishment. The acts themselves cannot be jusfrom cline, it is obviously assuming a consequence for a cau e. Let it be proposed to punish an iuaccent person, to deter others from crime, and all men would be shocked at it.

The whole truth is, the criminal deserves to sufand who can perform it as she did, with so great truthfulness to nature, must have something impure in her own mind, or she would not so well understand and render the part, nor permit her lips to utter profamity. The play is only fit for representation of crime, a man may conclude that the touter profamity. merous to mention.

Ten Cars in Twenty Feet Water.

Messrs. Rumbold and Bishop, well known citizens of St. Louis, came to our office last evening with the melancholy intelligence of a terrible disaster which happened on the Pacific railroad yesterday, between onequal two o'clock, r. M., to the excursionists to Jefferson City. We have no language at command to express our feelings. Never did we receive, or have-occasion to record, more shocking intelligence.

The gentlemen who bring the sad tidings were

The gentlemen who bring the sad thaings were on their way to tho city as passengers on the Ben Bolt, and saw the train of cars pass up with the company on board, and exchanged salutations. The boat soon came to a landing, and the train proceeded on to the Gasconade river, about eight the company of the co miles distant. Before the boat was ready to leave, a locomotive which had followed the train for the purpose of rendering assistance in case of accident, or of seeing that all was right along the road, came back from the river with the word that the bridge over the Gasconade, standing thirty-five feet above the water, had broken down while the train was crossing, and that ten or eleven cars, with their occupants, had been presipitated into twenly feet water. The consternation of the men with the locomotive was so great that they could barely anaounce the fact, only adding that they thought at least one hundred and fifty had got out of the cars to walk over the bridge. These were probably five hundred persons in the company. Two, of our military companies were along, the Grays and the National Guards—as were also many members of the press, and private citizens. niles distant. Before the boat was ready to leave, the press, and private citizens.

The locomotive came down

The locomotive came down to the train bound for St. Louis, which was immediately taken by the superintendent and his men wask to the scene of suffering, and may have been the means of saving many lives.

Sessers. Rumbold and Bishop at once provailed upon the ticket arent and engineers. apon the ticket agent and engineer, at H. mann, to come immediately to the city with the news, which was consented to, and a locomotive a d baggage car were dispatched, on which our informants took passage to bear the mournful tidings to the friends, who had, with joyous hearts, but just before as it were, bid fathers, brothers, hu bands, and associates (i.d. speed, e.g. received.)

fore as it were, bid fathers, brothers, hu-bands, and associates God speed, and regretting that they themselves were not of the party.

The continuen deserve much credit for the promptness with which they acted in getting to the city with the hart-rending news. They also state that the Ben Bolt would lay to at Miller's landing until something more was heard from the scene, and hold herself in readiness to take on the woulded, and bring them to the city. The Polar seene, and not herself in readiness to take on the wounded, and bring them to the city. The Polar Star was also expected along every moment, and would of course stop at llemann, where it would be in her power to render assistance, which we hope has been the case.

As we are writing, we hear that an express train has gone up the road, and we defer any further statements or comments until its return, or intelli-gence is received by some other channel. LATER.

will be drawn as above. The gifts to be distributed are of the best quality. The most valuable prize is a Span of Horses and new Family Carriage, with silver-mountd Harness, complete, worth $90; and the next most valuable gift is $500 in American Gold, which is certainly worth the risk of a dollar; and, in addition, there are one hundred Gold and Silver Watches, worth from $17
to $100 each; solid Silver Table and Tea Sponns; fine
Gold Pens and Pencils; ladies' and gents' Breast Pins, Finger and Ear Rings, &c.

The prizes are all genuine and worth precleely what they are put up at, and the public may rest assured that the drawing will be fairly conducted, as my enterprises have always been; in fact, they could not be otherwise, the arrangements being always under the control of a committee of ticket holders; and no matter how far distant a ticket holder may live, whatever prizes
he may draw will be sent to him by mail or express free of expense.

A circular is printed, containing a complete list of prizes, a description of the manner of drawing, &c.;
and will be sent to all who may order it, whether they purchase tickets or not.

I hope my drawing will not be confounded with the swinding operations of others who have been engaged in enterprises professedly similar, as my only object is to make a living in this way, being incapacitated to that blindness from pursuing the ordinary avocations of CAUTION. THE GREAT CELEBrity which my Eau Lustrale llair Restorative has acquired in Philadelphia and thronghout the United States, and the great demand that I have for the article, have prompted some unprincipled persons to get up an article in the same name, and in every ouward appearance perfectly similar. The label is a perfect fac simile of my own. The subscriber would be above noticing such baseness, but is obliged to do so to put his customers upon their guard, as the whole style of the article is well calculated to deceive. Be careful to look that the name of Jules Ilanel be on the label.

WONDERFUL! ASTONISHING!! Unrivaled dark, lovely, and beautiful hair is produced by the use of that popular preparation, known as Jules Hauel's Eau Lustrale Restorative.

No one will use any other after once using lihs delightful article. It is prouounced to be a prodigy in chemistry. It cleans the hair, renders it heantifully bright, smooth, and glossy, and restores the bair where it has fallen off from disease, and in these desarrable effects it has never failed to give satisfaction. Lew We clip the following from the St. Louis Intelligencer of the lat:

Navication.—From St. Louis to Cairo there is a channel depth of full ten set, which is water enough to allow the largest boats in the trade to arrive and depart loaded to their utmost apacity. The Illinois continues in good boating order with five feet linto techannel to Lasalle. In the upper Mississippi to keokink, there are six to seven feet, and bur feet on the Lower Kapids.—From the Rapids of the Taul there is a fair navigable stage. The Ohio is in cod boating order, and boats arriving from it daily brose full freights. The Missouri continues quite low, and unless a rise takes place soon, (of which there is not de least prospect), navigation in that stream will soon be brought to a close. Take the rivers altogether, they are in as good boating order as is usual at this season of the year.
